

2016

Dr. Robert Houseknecht

Bob is a 1954 graduate of Hughesville and has spent his life in the pursuit of knowledge and an endless amount of time passing this knowledge on to hundreds of students. Currently the Adjunct Faculty at the American Military University, teaches graduate courses, Epidemiology, Control of communicable diseases, and public health in the US. Bob has traveled many parts of the world from Haiti to Romania. Serving his country for many years in the USAF and the US Public Health Service, Bob has toured many parts of the world from Haiti to Romania helping children in need.

Education:

PhD (Epidemiology), University of North Carolina

PhD (Microbiology), University of Michigan

MPH, University of Pittsburgh

BA, Lycoming College

Certifications:

Faculty Training / Seminars, Eastern Virginia Medical School regarding "Teaching by Objective" and extensive Grant Writing Workshops

Certificate, Medical Microbiology, NIH Graduate Program, (course work completed at NIH and CDC)
(Registered as a Specialist in Medical and Public Health Microbiology, American Society for Microbiology)

Certificate, EMT by NREMT for Emergency Medicine

(USAF Corpsman, Field Medic, Aviation Medicine and Medical Administration AFSCs- Specialty Training)

Board membership:

State and Territorial Epidemiologist Association

American Public Health Association

National Environmental Health Association

American Society for Microbiology

Commissioned Officer Association, COA, US Public Health Association

Military Officers Association of America, MOA, active Chapter Member

Personal:

Married to his wife Rosemary, with three children, two grandchildren, and three great-grandchildren.